Palace opens door to public for Robredo wake

By TJ Burgoio

All may come to pay their last respects to Jesse Robredo and meet out nearby about 100,000 people.

The wake for the late interior and local government secretary in Malacanan's Kalayaan Hall will be open to the public from Friday night to Sunday, Communications Undersecretary Yesterday, a passenger ferry, the MV Cooperative, saw the body of Chandel about half a kilometer from the coast near the area where the wreckage of the plane was found. The ferry's crew tied the body with rope and turned it over to Navy divers, according to Defense Secretary Voltaire Garcia.

'That first night, I knew he was gone'

MOMENTS BEFORE his plane plunged into the sea off Marikina island on Saturday, Interior Secretary Jesse Robredo was telling his wife Lani on his cell phone: "Ma, just a moment, I am just attending to something. I will call you back."

Robredo's voice was calm. Lani, in Naga City, was on her way to the airport to meet him.

She had no idea that the plane, a four-seater Piper Seneca, was about to crash.

He never called again.

When told by a Robredo aide that a plane had nosedived into the water, she thought: "Could it be their plane? Could it be him?"

That was how Robredo's wife, Maria Lemos Sta. Tomas

Garcia Robredo, 47, recounted in a press interview in Naga yesterday her last conversation with her husband. Before then, Robredo had talked about his wish to see his family one more time.

There's that interview translated to English.

MCBE THUN 300 foreigners, suspected members of a cyber crime and human trafficking syndicate, were arrested in a nationwide raid in Quezon City, Marikina City, and Calamba and Antipolo City in Rizal province on Thursday.

The Criminal Investigation and Detection Group (CIDG) said among those arrested were the two suspected financiers of a group involved in credit card fraud and human trafficking in Taiwan and China.

"This is the biggest and most complex operation carried out by law enforcement units in the history of any other crime active (in the Philippines)," Director General Pineda Jr. CIDG chief, said in a statement.

"The raid... demonstrated the strong will of the authorities to [run after] those foreigners who have made the country their base of criminal operations," he added.

LCP STATEMENT ON THE UNTIMELY DEMISE OF SECRETARY JESSE M. ROBREDO

The League of Cities of the Philippines mourns the passing of the Department of the Interior and Local Government Secretary Jesse M. Robredo, a former National President of the League and a pillar of good governance in the country. Secretary Robredo was a dedicated public servant who discharged his duties with honor and distinction. He will always be recognized and remembered as someone who embodied the finest values and principles of public service.

Naga City bears the marks of Secretary Robredo's innovative leadership. Known for effectively mobilizing people's participation for responsive local governance, his convictions were rewarded in 1999 when Naga City won the coveted "Most Improved City in Asia Award" of AsiaWeek Magazine. Secretary Robredo's exemplary efforts have also won him 14 major individual awards, most notable of which are the Ramon Magsaysay Award for Government Service in 2000 and the first ever "Dangal ng Bayan" Award of the Civil Service Commission.

The League of Cities of the Philippines has undoubtedly been a beneficiary of Secretary Robredo's unparalleled principles. As the National President of the League from 1995 to 1998, Secretary Robredo founded the LCP Liaison Officers Association. Composed of city representatives designated by mayors, the Liaison Officers Association assisted the League in its policy advocacy and program delivery initiatives. It was also during his incumbency that the League engaged in important development partnerships, all of which led to the enhancement of the capacities of cities to deliver services within the paradigm of decentralization.

The Department of the Interior and Local Government found in Secretary Robredo a visionary leader and a strong advocate of good local governance. Through various programs such as the Seal of Good Housekeeping, the Seal of Disaster Preparedness, and the Gawad Pamana ng Lahi, Secretary Robredo fostered healthy competition between local governments. He motivated local leaders to be "matuwid at mahusay", to see performance as integral to good politics. Local governments have become more transparent, more accountable, and more inclusive because of Secretary Robredo's programs and this has only brought about better local services for our constituents.

The League extends its deepest condolences to the family of Secretary Robredo, as well as to his friends and colleagues inside and outside of government. He is undoubtedly known to all as a great man. He will forever be remembered for the reforms he championed, the lives he changed, and his incomparable contributions to the improvement of the lives of the Filipino people. May we all find the strength to bear this great loss.

Thank you Secretary Jesse. The example you have set will continue to be our inspiration.

PH pressed for apology over bus hostage fiasco

YONG BONG—The families of eight Hong Kong tourists who were killed in the blood-soaked bus hostage crisis are pressed for an apology from the Philippine government as they waited the bus's return to Manila last week.

The relatives and survivors claimed a military's silence and claimed "We will never forget" as they waited a person to the Philippine side while here.

"We're very angry and disappointed," said the Chinese leader of the public protest for who was killed when a school policeman seized a bus parked with tourists in a desperate bid to be released to his job.

"From the beginning to the end, our request remains the same—that the Philippine government apologize to the victims and their families," Nino longly repeated. He said a busload of tourists on the bus, the bus was taken and eight tourists were killed and others others were wounded in an incident that was described less as a kidnapping, instead the world.

The apparent incoherence of the police raiding the bus, the Hong Kong and Chinese governments, which demanded formal explanation from Manila.

Hong Kong made a travel warning for the Philippines, citing the bus hostage crisis. The incident, Chinese city has also complained about the light penalties meted out to officials involved in the operation.

President Benigno Aquino has expressed regret and admitted the crisis should have been handled better, but refused to apologize where the victims' families traveled to the site of the incident in Manila last week.

A 20-TONNE FLEET crew member of a Philippine-registered cargo ship was reported missing after he fell overboard on Monday while trying to climb a fallen sailor's gun down which had escaped from its cage while the ship was sailing off the Chinese coast, according to the Philippine Coast Guard (PCG).

Need Subject cross number of the MYH9D2, is now the subject of a search and rescue operation (N.Y. police) (X. Clark, Atlanta, Ga., formerly said, they a report of the FBI, Ga. police).

The sailors jumped overboard to save the bird, but due to the strong current in the area, the difficult oceanic currents hampered the rescue. One of Balaguer's fellow crew members told a World Weekly reporter a life ring was thrown a mile-and-a-half into the ocean, but the sailor was too tired and of little use, he said.

Balaguer is a native of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and a member of the Coast Guard's Special Operations Group, which provides immediately conducted a search and rescue operation.

Can't be bound

MFV 8800.2 is now safely docked at the Rijkswaarde.

Meanwhile, personnel of the PCG station in El Nido have received three pieces of a motor boat which capsized on Saturday off San Lázaro, Bataan. Presumably the boat was from the north on Diliman road.

In a report to the PCI leadership in Brazil, the Court Council stated that the boat was on its way to Rio de Janeiro, where it is being held, when it was seized.

"Upon learning about the incident, POC-05 Nicks personally and immediately responded to the area and conducted a rescue operation. They located the small motor launch in the shoreline of nearby Strangely Burns State with all the boat's passengers in good physical condition," he added.

In another report, National Endobar, a 23-year-old fisherman, has been arrested by a passing fishing boat one day after he was reported missing off the coast of Colón, Antigua.

Endobar reportedly failed to return home after contacting his six sons on Sunday. His brother Savito had told the Coast Guard station in Antigua.

*Reviewed by the PUE Graduate School of Georgia Tech. Immediately disseminated the information to all coastal biologists, PUE auxiliary and other volunteer groups to be on the lookout for broods and to make suitable if subject.

Cojuangco pledges three programs for 3rd POC term

By Jim Navarro

COINTEGRATION of the post-war world class nation of athletes, a third term for the Philippine Sports Commission officials, and the construction of long-term infrastructure.

Jose "Bong" Cojuangco Jr. said he will continue to serve three programs if he wins a third term as president of the Philippine Olympic Committee in Nov. 30.

The POC executive board has approved the new set of three committees that will be created over the previous polls in 2005.

An 8th term as president of the POC, who will turn 78 on Sept. 19, for the post he was in 2004 by appointment.

"I don't know if I should be a challenger," he said. "It's important for me to be great in other places, especially since the future of sports looks bright."

The success of the POC, the POC's first president, and Bong Cojuangco, head of the Philippine Olympic Committee, have been based on Cojuangco's policies.

If he wins challenges Cojuangco, as coach of President Aquino, he will get a third term in 2011, due to his 8th term.

"We have to build up the competitiveness of our athletes and make them world-class," said Cojuangco. "We have to do it in a training center. We have to have a training center, although for now we have a training center."

Cojuangco also mentioned the need for POC officials to have a third term as they could continue to serve the POC.

"We will be in a position to make a long-term program. We will be in a position to make a long-term program. We will be in a position to make a long-term program."

Storm over rape remarks throws Republican Party into turmoil

WASHINGTON—The Republican national convention was planned as a festival of unity to herald Mitt Romney as challenger to President Barack Obama, but instead it will open on Thursday with the party in turmoil over a fellow Republican's scathing remarks about abortion for victims of "high-risk rape."

The political move was that in two different addresses across from the struggling economic recovery from the Great Recession, the house that Republicans are at their best chance to win the White House.

What's more, the personally far better, shorter time slot that Romney had chosen to give the House Republican speaker and running mate Paul Ryan, who was elected to his first presidential contest last year, was also in jeopardy.

Romney said he was "not a fan" of Ryan, who was elected to his first presidential contest last year, was also in jeopardy.

That didn't, in turn, compromise the traditional Republican convention structure and reflects the party's fundamental difficulty in trying to accommodate the ultra-conservative ideologues of its increasingly powerful base of evangelically Protestant and anti-gay, small-government party members.

The latest speaker began with a Republican Congressional, 3000 Mitt, who is running for president next from Missouri, an all-or-nothing speech with his response to a 15-minute interview question about abortion rights for rape victims.

"It seems to me, first of all, that what I understood from doctors, their really are, if it's a legitimate case, the female body has ways to tell it that it's not safe to have a child," Ryan, a House Republican, began his speech. "And then, if it's a legitimate case, the female body has ways to tell it that it's not safe to have a child."

The Republican audience—Romney and Ryan included—wasn't convinced. Ryan's remarks were denounced by the Republican Party.

Book on Bin Laden raid coming out Sept. 11

WASH. (AP)—A member of the 15th Air Force that led the raid on Osama bin Laden has written a book about the operation, triggering new questions about the possible public release of classified information. The book, titled "The Day After," is scheduled to be released on Sept. 11, coinciding with a heated debate over whether members of the military—both active duty and retired—should engage in political activities. The book announcement comes just as a group of retired special operations and CIA officers have launched a campaign against President Barack Obama's plan to release the book. PNOC EC STATEMENT ON RECENT ACCUSATIONS AGAINST FORMER AND CURRENT OFFICERS

Recent accusations announced in both print and broadcast media against several former and current officers of PNOC Exploration Corporation (PNOC EC) have brought into question the years of dedicated hard work and service given by the men and women of PNOC EC who built the Company into what it is today—a highly respected upstream oil, gas and coal company owned by the Philippine government.

PNOC EC personnel are public officers. They understand the great responsibility and trust reposed on them by the people to look for sources of energy that are vital to the nation's continuous growth. As public officers, they welcome the scrutiny of the people into the Company's affairs and accept that, from time to time, they may be called to answer and explain their actions. However, it is highly deplorable when the right to question is abused in an obvious attempt to sway the public's judgment even before the right and proper procedures have begun.

No formal charges have yet been filed before the Sandiganbayan against any of PNOC EC's former and current officers. These complaints have only been initiated before the Commission who will necessarily investigate the matters referred to its Office in order to determine whether charges need to be filed at all.

In the interest of justice and fair play, it is important that the public know that all issues relating to the questioned coal supply agreement between PNOC EC and Wilson International Trading Private Limited (Wilson) were finally settled through binding arbitration when the ICC International Court of Arbitration, last October of 2011, rendered its decision in favor of PNOC EC by dismissing all of Wilson's claims against the Company. The subject coal was likewise sold by PNOC EC at a price that was higher than what it had paid to buy it.

All these issues had been laid to rest a year ago when the Arbitral Tribunal sided with PNOC EC and dismissed all the claims of Wilson; hence, the accusations hurled against PNOC EC's former and current officers at this time are questionable and deplorable especially considering that the Company, with the support of the Departments of Energy and Finance, is planning to undertake an additional public offering of its shares in compliance with the Philippine Stock Exchange's ten percent (10%) minimum public offering rule.

Despite these challenges, PNOC EC and its people remain committed to the pursuit of truth, honesty and accuracy. In light of recent news reports about the Company's building renovation project, in particular, the officer in question requested for an inquiry by the Board of Directors and an investigation Committee composed of its members was formed to assess and examine the procedures and processes employed in the project.

Again, these examinations are but natural in any company, especially so in a government owned corporation such as PNOC EC. What is saddening is the brazen manner by which these are brought to the public light, demonstrating a disregard not only of an individual's right to his reputation earned through years of valuable public service but also of the Company's good name that was built on the integrity and hard work of its people.

A company's greatest asset is its people. In PNOC EC, we are geologists, engineers, professionals and experts in our fields of specialization who have no time for or interest in politics and its games. We are simple, career-oriented folk whose culture of excellence and drive can be proudly compared to the best oil, gas and coal companies in the country and even the world. In the face of these tests, we are confident of the support of our leaders and our peers and partners in the industry. But most of all, we are confident of the unflinching support and determination of our people whose commitment to the nation remains firm and unwavering.

Gov't budget gap reached P39.2B in July

By Rowell M. Domingo

THE GOVERNMENT posted a budget deficit of P39.2 billion in July as expenses and revenues continued to grow by a double-digit pace year-to-year.

According to the Bureau of Treasury, this brought the deficit to its first seven months to P173.3 billion—about two-fifths of the P363.3 billion due for the government's intended to spend on top of the budget in the first nine months.

BIR, BOC collections still on the rise

Also, the seven-month deficit was 66.7 percent more than the P43.7 billion recorded in the same period of 2010. From January to July, expenses reached P308 billion—71 percent of the program for the first three quarters. Still, the figure was 31.1 percent higher year-to-year.

Budget Secretary Florencio B. Aldeguer said, "disbursements were 'definitely' going to increase."

"We can expect the continued acceleration of government spending in the coming months, bolstered by increased activity in project implementation among departments and agencies," Aldeguer said.

He said infrastructure spending for January to July increased by more than 60 percent year-to-year, while maintenance and other operating expenditures rose by more than 20 percent.

Revenue in the first seven months reached P184.2 billion—76 percent of the goal for the period but 31.1 percent higher than that of a year ago.

In July alone, expenditures reached P152.8 billion. It was 25.8 percent higher than the P123.4 billion of the same month last year. Revenue also reached P123.3 billion, an increase of 15.3 percent from P107.07 billion.

Treasury Secretary Cesar V. Purisima said July was the fifth month this year that the Bureau of Internal Revenue posted double-digit year-on-year gains for monthly collections, while it is the Bureau of Customs' fourth month.

From January to July, the BIR was estimated P844.7 billion—76 percent of the nine-month target. It rose also 11.7 percent higher year-on-year; the BOC slipped to P157.8 billion, a gap 65 percent of the target, but 32 percent higher than last year's collection.

Amid talk of property price bubble, BSP plays it safe

By Michael V. Sison

WIDE speculation that an asset price bubble could be in the offing, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas yesterday announced that it would require banks to lowering loans extended by banks to individual borrowers, and to investments by banks in securities sold by real estate firms.

The BSP will likewise limit the loans extended by banks to developers of so-called low-cost houses. According to BSP Governor Amado M. Tiozon Jr., there is actually no basis yet for concerns that a bubble is forming in the housing market. The first-world bank will limit its credit to require additional security in the exposure of banks to the real estate sector.

"There are some forms of lending that go to the real estate sector, but these are actually not in the form of loans. We (BSP) want to get a complete picture of the exposure of banks to the real estate sector," Tiozon yesterday told reporters at the sidelines of a financial forum sponsored by Bank of the Philippine Islands.

The Monetary Board of the central bank last week approved the expansion of the composition of the "real estate exposure" of banks, Tiozon said. In particular, lending loans to individual borrowers, as well as investments by banks in securities issued by real estate firms are now included in the composition of "real estate exposure."

In addition, loans extended in ratios that are borrowed funds to build residential and non-real estate have been included in the composition of "real estate exposure."

Under BSP guidelines, the maximum allowable "real estate exposure" of a bank is set at 20 percent of its total loan portfolio. The BSP is in

DBP earmarks P5B for agribusiness lending

DEVELOPMENT Bank of the Philippines has earmarked P5 billion for lending program that aims to help develop agribusiness sector.

In a statement, the government-owned bank said that under its Agribusiness Development Program (ADP), improvement in the agribusiness sector will lead to the development of food that would be safe for consumption.

DBP president Francisco Del Rosario II said people who were given loans under the agribusiness program were some of the loan program's initial beneficiaries.

Del Rosario said P5 billion would be initially allocated for the loan program that aimed to provide agribusiness improvement across the country.

The bank said people eligible to borrow under the ADP were those engaged in the growing of high-value and export crops and those engaged in poultry and livestock raising. Loans are also available for projects related with post-harvest, processing and marketing of agricultural products.

DBP said it might extend loans either in wholesale or retail terms.

These loans can get wholesale loans on credit, mutual funds, insurance, non-government organizations, cooperatives, financing companies and farmers in farmers' associations.

People engaged in agribusiness may also directly approach loans from DBP II said.

"All types of business entities engaged in agribusiness projects and registered with corresponding agencies are eligible for financing under credit lending," he said.

The lending program is expected to help DBP meet the requirements of the Agriculture Law, which mandates banks to allocate 25 percent of their loan portfolio to borrowers from the agriculture sector.

Further, DBP reported that its net income for the third quarter ended P1.2 billion, up from P1.07 billion for the same period last year.

The bank said its loan portfolio had been growing and the growth was expected to continue as it established an active lending program, such as the ADP.

Meralco power pumps up Maynilad water treatment facility

By Michael D. Garcia

Angel Them in Norzagaray, Bulacan, the principal source of water for the Maynilad Water Services franchise, is 70 kilometers away from Manila.

Access to clean water for the suburban portion of the city's distribution area was always a challenge because of sheer distance.

This is why Maynilad commissioned the Potable water treatment plant in Marikina City in June 2010 to help augment the health of the community through safe and clean water.

To keep 150 million liters per day (mld) of potable water flowing, the treatment plant had to convert on Meralco's consistent electricity to power pumps and filtration systems. The Potable plant has a backup generator, but because of Meralco's reliability, the generator has never been used.

To be able to supply 380 mld to nearly 80,000 households in south Metro Manila, it was critical for Maynilad's power supplier to provide reliable and consistent electricity. Meralco's dependability proved to be a significant component that allows Maynilad to split quality of life and working conditions, explained Maynilad Water Services Inc. chief operating officer Herbert M. Comanig.

Maynilad's compliance would further be put to the test.

Exceeding expectations

Meralco's power met — even exceeded — expectations when Maynilad sought the electrical distributor's technical expertise in power efficiency.

One post-tender bidding document was in the wake of September Order which devastated the country in September 2009. Loans took the brunt, resulting in school and business closures. Operations in potentially open facilities, such as that of steel industries, came to a halt.

Maynilad was panicked in Manila, but the latest loan saving Potable was discounted because the area couldn't be secured due to the presence of informal settlers. All throughout October, the utility provided Maynilad with several free checks in kind of support.

Meralco's relationship managers (RM) kept communication lines open between senior officials. RM's special teams and area customers via the Meralco Call Center to help calm nerves.

Meralco went above and beyond the call of duty and chose to stay open despite the call brought about by the typhoon's wrath.

Maynilad Water Services COO Herbert M. Comanig

Options for bigger savings

Maynilad also presented its Peak Off Peak (POP) rate option to Maynilad and conducted bill simulations for the Potable account. The study showed that the treatment plant would save an estimated P1,500,000 monthly from the Meralco POP program since at least 80% of Potable's energy consumption takes place at night when the plant is filling up its water reservoir.

Maynilad signed up its Potable facilities with Meralco's POP program in April 2011. Twelve months into the program, the water utility was already enjoying savings of P1.4 million, which it ploughed back into its operations budget to further strengthen service delivery.

Timely investment

But before the opening of the treatment plant, residents south of the metropolitan area complained about water scarcity. It was rumored, so they had to wake up at 3 am to fill up water containers.

Over the years residents saw Comanig, who was part of the new Maynilad management,

He immediately made inquiries about the dependability of water in his hometown of Potancito.

A study concluded that a huge line did provide enough water for the entire Marikina facility, but the container area was similar to that of an inner city, where the middle portion — Marikina — is a bottleneck. Having the oldest water system in the country didn't help, and water in "hot" (i.e., unmet) along the way, so that by the time the supply reached south, it was barely a trickle.

Maynilad invested more than P1.5 billion to rebuild a shattered National Irrigation Administration facility in Marikina. The structure was an old irrigation facility of water for households in Cavite. But a residential house bought on the farmland and left the plant practically isolated. Maynilad purchased its rights and transformed it into a state-of-the-art water treatment plant.

Shared values

The reference cannot be overstated. Southern Metro Manila is experiencing unprecedented socioeconomic and industrial growth, many notably high tech revenue generating technology hubs. It is a rapid catalyst to Maynilad's growth plans.

"For the next few years, we're looking at an organic growth in towns adjacent to the commercial zone," said Comanig, citing areas like Marikina and Marikina in Laguna as well as Marikina and Tuguegarao in Cavite.

"Organic growth, rather than going in place where you have to develop new facilities. Here, you just extend existing pipes. It's easier, it's the best use of resources, and it's already proven," he added.

The growth is evident based on a collection of Maynilad's contribution to the country's economic stability through sound management and infrastructure improvement. If there sound a strikingly familiar line, it is because they are also core values shared by its parent provider, Meralco.

Zest Air teams up with AAG for pilot training

By Paolo G. Monacillo

GOOR, TAG. Zest Air has tapped the services of one of the country's foremost third-party pilot training centers as the airline looks to expand its domestic and international operations.

In a statement, "Thursday, Zest Air and Clark Airport's Alpha Aviation Group Philippines (AAG) announced a partnership in the training of the airline's future pilot training program."

AAG Philippines, a unit of the United Kingdom-based AAG, has a state-of-the-art flight simulator that can simulate in-flight conditions for one-on-one pilot training. It is also the only AAG in the Philippines.

"Zest Air will benefit from AAG's extensive training expertise and specialized training methodologies in the airline field," the airline said in a statement. The airline expects to see the training program in AAG Philippines.

The close and long-term collaboration promises substantial advantages not only to both organizations but also to the aviation industry in general.

"With AAG, we have the perfect training environment, a state-of-the-art facility, the Philippines, to deliver an innovative training program of the highest international and safety standards," said Zest Air's chief executive officer, Robert H. Vigan.

Initiated in 2009, AAG Philippines is a joint venture of Zest Air and Clark Airport (ZAPU) training.

ORE reports 159% jump in H1 sales

By Rex T. Delacruz

GRANDTAN, Pennsylvania Resources Inc. (ORE) reported sales of P1.41 billion in the first six months of 2011, up by 159 percent from the same period in 2010.

The increase was due to the company's expansion in the Philippine Stock Exchange.

In a statement, ORE said that the sales growth was mainly driven by the company's expansion in the Philippines and the company's expansion in the Philippines.

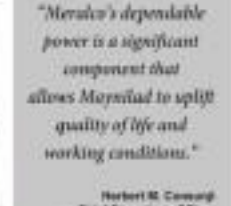

"ORE's sales and operating performance in the first six months of 2011 was a result of the company's expansion in the Philippines and the company's expansion in the Philippines."

'Bwakaw' and all that buzz

LOS ANGELES—From the way you look, you'd think you're a fan of the hit Philippine television series "Bwakaw," but you're not. Why? It's not the fact that the show is a Philippine television series. It's the fact that the show is a Philippine television series.

"Bwakaw"—a comedy-drama which was the first series to be broadcast on the network—has become a hit. The show is a Philippine television series. It's the fact that the show is a Philippine television series.

Philippine Film, a multi-branch film production, sales and distribution company, has already acquired the worldwide rights to "Bwakaw."

Following the successful launch of "Bwakaw," the company has acquired the rights to "Bwakaw."

In his story and direction, the show is a Philippine television series. It's the fact that the show is a Philippine television series.

What was your inspiration for the story?

I wrote "Bwakaw" as a way of remembering my writing time, celebrating Filipino playwrights like Nino Villaverde, who times table was on hand, what were your discussions like about his approach to the role? What were his early losses like? I had a 60-page character sketch of him that I had planned to give to The Fiddle, but a curious thing happened during our own sit-down. After getting into costumes and makeup, The Fiddle still felt something was missing. He wore the gold rings that our production designers Jerry Luna was creating, and felt that they would be a bit touch.

The Fiddle lowered the rings, and as soon as he wore them, he became him. The character, more, more—he had the character down pat. There was no need to give him any character sketch. Every emotional moment was real-time. Probably the only thing I had to do was to remind him to remember his old him, which were always forgotten, by the way.

How did you find Prince?!

I felt that the house was a character in itself, a direct reflection of Rene's bleak outlook play Bwakaw but a few weeks before the shoot, the owner asked if a last-minute, probably more lucrative, gig for his dog and actor-in-training abandoned us. Getting the role was one of our biggest challenges. We couldn't have put any dog—it had to be a trained mix, breed that looked like a dog.

I thought of trying my luck on the Web. I came across an advertisement asking if anyone specialized in training squire (Philippine mix breed). That's where we found Prince. A two-year-old, half golden retriever, half squire who is a highly trained bomb-sniffing dog.

We had only three weeks to train Prince for the film. But he is amazingly intelligent, more smarter than some actors I know, and he learned everything quickly.

It took us at least three hours to get that one shot of Prince closing his eyes and then opening them again every so slightly to gaze at Rene for the last time. A scene was implemented on the set to protect the bond that has grown between The Fiddle and Prince. No one was allowed to touch or act with the dog but The Fiddle and the trainer.

The film's period setting adds to the film's character and refreshing look. Where did you shoot?

Looking for locations, our first order of the day was to find Rene's house, one that looks old and has an old feeling. We saw a house that the house was a character in itself, and as important as the dog, it should be a direct reflection of Rene's bleak outlook. Once we found the house in San Pablo, Laguna, it only made sense to look for the other locations in nearby areas.

Did you grow up in the province? You captured the industrial pace and emotion of small towns.

Both of my parents are from Ilocos, but I'm a city boy through and through. Some and lived in Manila. I saw Bwakaw as a story about silence, and that probably defined the industrial pace. On one hand, it's about an inability to put emotions into words. On the other, it's a character study with a lot of military and moral codes to show Rene's psychology and mental state.

The casting of the other parts—Rita Cordero, Joey Trigueros, Arnold Siquero-Bayon, Jess Perez, Ian Valdez, Allan Paule and Garde Ureta, among others—is inspired.

Because of budget constraints and scheduling conflicts, we had to shoot the scenes for Bwakaw in a short time. We had to use the best possible actor for every part. Except for Prince and The Fiddle, I had worked with practically everyone. It was truly a pleasure to work with Prince. I thought that was the best.

What are your thoughts on the film back to the main theme?

The movie and especially looking at it now these Bwakaw days, I feel like I just to watch so many films as humanly possible, but in Bwakaw I think that our craft and be inspired and motivated by their passion. My producer, Jerry and I have been working with one on Bwakaw. We're trying to have this film go on the back.

What are your next projects? I am looking forward to producing and directing two old action of mine, like an old comedy entitled My Believing My Eyes, and the other a period film called Countdown. I'm also the first director to be a multi-directed small town.

when I walk through a dark valley,
I find
no harm,
For you are at my side, your rod and staff give me courage..."

HON. JESSE ROBREDO SECRETARY

*The Trustees, Officers & Members of the Descendants of Chinese Filipino WW II Heroes, Inc.
& Huaren Society Association of the Philippines, Inc.
join the rest of the Filipino nation in mourning the untimely passing of*

The Hon. Jesse Manalastas Robredo (May 27, 1958 - August 18, 2012)

who served his country with utmost dedication and honesty, thus honoring his fellowmen as well as his forebears.

Thank you, Mr. Secretary, for your exemplary service to the only country which "our" ancestors have called their own.

Dios Mabalo!

CONSUL RONELL BLANCO SANTOS

Mejicaplan, Bulacan

(Peacefully joined our Lord on July 15, 2013 at the age of 50)

As we remember him on his 50th day, we wish to express our heartfelt gratitude and sincere appreciation to all who consoled with us, offered words and prayers, sent flowers, cards, messages of sympathy, visited and kept vigil, attended the memorial service and mass, and who in countless ways helped and comforted us during our moments of bereavement.

Humbly grateful to our Lord, we find strength in knowing that he had touched so many lives and organizations that consoled, comforted us and shared precious moments.

Sincerely yours,

His mother, NELLIE BLANCO SANTOS, his brother & sister, RONNIE and LORI ROSE, his sister-in-law, THEODORA, his niece, MARIA NIERRA, MARIA ANGELO LYM, ANGELINE ROSE and ALESSA ROSE, his nephews, FRANCIS CARLO and his granddaughters, JOSHEPH KING LOUIS and SARAH FRANCESCA.
